Dear Mr. Musk:

We write to you regarding your recent announcement to encourage you to move your two companies, SpaceX and X, to be headquartered in the great state of Texas.¹ The motto of Texas is Friendship, and we Texans view strong companies like yours as a critical ally in building our economy. For that reason, we use this letter to extend our hand in friendship and welcome to Texas.

As you know, Texas has a long-established technology industry and is brimming with skilled talent. There is also no shortage of exceptional locations within Texas, regardless of whether you prefer to set up shop in a rural or urban area. Due to the tireless efforts of state and federal legislators, Texas is an ideal state to conduct business in. This is showcased by the many Fortune 500 companies already headquartered in the state, along with the countless small businesses that are the backbone of our local economy.²

Rest assured, the Lone Star State welcomes you and your wonderful companies with open arms. We look forward to working with you to bolster the economy of both Texas, and our great nation. Please reach out if you have any questions and know that Texas thanks you for your Friendship.

Sincerely,

Pat Fallon
